HGHI BURKE FELLOWSHIP 2027-28 IN USA (PAID)

The HGHI Burke Fellowship is a fellowship run by the Harvard Global Health Institute for 2027-2028. It is for research fellows, post-doctoral scholars and early career faculty working in global health and climate change.

HARVARD
GLOBAL HEALTH INSTITUTE

Summary

- Country: United States
- Host: Harvard Global Health Institute
- Duration: Varies
- Benefits: Paid
- Deadline: 3 January 2027

Benefits

- Salary of $90,000 per year for two years
- Salary supports scholarship related to climate change and global health
- Additional funding to cover open-access publishing costs
- Funding to attend a research conference or networking event
- Expert-led professional development workshops
- Connections with peers across Harvard's schools and specialties
- Attendance at global health events
- Publishing in an open-access journal once during the fellowship
- Research awards of $90,000 each (Burke Global Health Fellowship)
- Curriculum Development awards of $30,000 each

Eligibility Criteria

- Research fellows, post-doctoral scholars and early career faculty pursuing scholarly research at the intersection of climate change and global health (HGHI-Salata Burke Climate and Health Fellowship)
- Junior Harvard faculty (HGHI Burke Global Health Fellowship)
- Projects may come from any discipline, including engineering, architecture, design, education, law, finance and others
- Eligibility requirements and sponsoring Harvard mentor requirements are listed on the Burke Fellowships page

https://scholarshipunion.com/hghi-burke-fellowship-2027-28-in-usa/